

Parasha Vincent Flowers

Parasha is currently serving as an Aviation Program Manager for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) in Washington D.C. He supports the White House and Congress on domestic programmatic issues. He joins the FAA from the Defense Contract Management Agency (DCMA) located in Arlington VA. While at DCMA he interfaced at the Pentagon with the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics and the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Acquisition, Logistics and Technology. His portfolio of programs contained Army and Marine Corps systems.

Prior to that assignment he served at DCMA Bell Helicopter, Texas where he was responsible for Program Integration of aircraft propulsion systems for various Army, Marine Corps, and Navy program offices. Parasha led an integrated product team of supply chain management, contract management, system engineer, earned value, quality assurance, and industrial engineers to assist the program manager in analytical reports and briefings to the DoD Service Commander. He assisted the contractor in identifying supply chain delivery constraints to the warfighter and developing solutions for problems, and devising methodologies for proactively managing change and cost efficiently.

Parasha past work experience includes positions with DCMA Dallas, Aviation and Missile Command (AMCOM), and the Department of the Army. He is a former active duty AH-64 Apache Helicopter Army Aviation First Sergeant and Co-Pilot. He is a Desert Storm and Operation Iraqi Freedom Veteran accumulating over 28 years of military government experience.

Parasha has maintained community and public service involvement as an American Legion member, motivational speaker, and member on boards of directors. He is on the cover page and feature story of the government magazine DCMA Communicator 2012 edition. Mr. Vincent Flower's civil service awards include Commander's Award for Civilian Service, Public Service Award, and Civilian Superior Service Award.

Parasha has attained DAWIA Level III certification in Program Management, Contracting Officer, and Life Cycle Logistics. He also has his Level II Production, Quality, and Manufacturing certification. He is graduate of Central Texas and Champlain colleges.
